Businesses rang up solid ski season

By ALISON ALOISIO

The past winter's wildly fluctuating weather brought highs and lows for area businesses, too. But on balance, it was a solid season.

"Mother Nature gave us a real winter this year," said Rob Hodgkins, marketing director for Ski Mt. Abram.

Skiers seeing snow in their back yards were motivated to get out on the hill, and business at the Locke Mills resort was "way up" over last season, he said.

Not only were more tickets sold, but the ski school, cafeteria and apres-ski business was up, too.

Hodgkins attributed that partly to a stronger marketing effort in the past two years.

"People were spending more money," he said.

At Sunday River, ski school enrollment at about 8 percent ahead of last year, according to spokesman Ken Brumby.

"It was a pretty good winter because with a heavy snow, everyone wanted to go out there," he said.

During low snow periods, however, the Newry Ski resort pulls in skiers who prefer the more challenging terrain.

Sunday River's season isn't over yet, but it's looking good for a solid year.

Charges dropped against Sid Pew

By ALISON ALOISIO

Charges filed by Bethel Against Sid Pew have been dropped, according to Bethel officials.

James Martemucci and Monday he received a letter from the District Attorney's office saying charges of criminal trespass and obstructing government administration had been dropped.

The charges stemmed from an incident at the Town Office on Feb. 2. Martemucci claimed that Pew had entered the file room without permission.

Martemucci said, however, that selectman Dick Plantier had given Pew permission to be in the room.

Prior to the incident, Pew had persistently questioned selectmen at their meetings regarding handling of the town's transfer station finances. Former selectman Joe Madigan abruptly adjourned some of the meetings.

Pew had originally been scheduled for a May 7 trial on the charges.

"We let the D.A. know we felt the charges were inappropriate because he (Pew) had permission from Dick Plantier," said Martemucci. "The selectmen were not even agreeing with one another. We urged him (the D.A.) to have the state trooper question Plantier."

Asked if Pew planned any counteraction, Martemucci said he would meet with his client within two weeks to discuss the possibility.

"We'll discuss what his civil rights are, and possible action against either individual selectmen or the town," he said. "We feel he (Pew) was falsely accused."

NOT GOLDEN ARCHES, but golden sunshine was the order of the day last Wednesday, May Day, at Sunday River Ski Resort. Overlooked floodplain ordinance muddies the waters in Newry

By ALISON ALOISIO

A lawyer reviewing Sunday River Ski Resort projects has come across a 1987 floodplain ordinance the Newry Planning Board didn't know about -- leaving town officials wondering what its implications are for both past and future projects.

Code Enforcement Officer Norm Putnam told the board last week he received a call from an attorney who was reviewing all projects done by Sunday River.

"He said he had to give an opinion whether Sunday River had met all of its obligations as far as the environment is concerned," Putnam said.

He said the lawyer found a reference to a floodplain ordinance.

"I had no idea the ordinance was there," said Putnam, who has been CEO for two years.

He searched for and found the ordinance, approved in 1987, in an old file.

He said the only Sunday River projects that might fall under the ordinance are a snowmaking pond near the Sunday River and a portion of the recently approved Jordan Road Access Road.

Board vice chairman Don Sandstrom said the discovery of the old ordinance was "very disturbing news" because it would leave the board having to operate under "an ordinance we didn't even know existed."

Chairman Joe Aloisio, who is also Sunday River's engineer and presents skway projects to the board for consideration, said he was

Telstar tracksters show balanced strength

By ALISON ALOISIO

Both the boys' and girls' track teams at Telstar High School are stronger than last year's squads -- despite the fact that each lost a star performer to graduation.

Girls

"Overall, I'm very pleased with their ability. It's a young group. The scorers are almost always underclassmen," said coach John Aglin.

The team includes seniors Heidi Blake (javelin) and Katey Mullen (sprinter); juniors Amber Brooke

(weights), Kelli Szente (weights), Rachel Stowell (weights), Sarah Seames (high jump, sprints), Darrell Howard (sprints), K.J. Jaramillo (sprints); sophomores Tabatha Mason (weights), Michelle McInnis (long/triple jumps, 400 meters), Kristy Walker, freshmen Heather Best (weights), Melinda Gilbert (high jump, sprints, pole vault); Emily Phillips (high jump, sprints). The squads' strongest events are the weights (shot put, javelin, discus).

In a meet last Thursday, Waisanen won the javelin throw, while teammates came in third through fifth. In the shot put, the Rebels placed second through fifth, while in the discus they took second, third and fifth.

They did nearly as well in the School budget referendum. The Citizen went to press before polling closed in Tuesday's first SAD44 school-budget referendum. The voting results will be included in next week's edition, and they will also be available in the daily Sun-Journal/Sunday.

Jeep parade Saturday morning. The eighth annual Maine Mountains Jeep Jamboree will arrive in town this Friday. Jamboree organizer Geoff Gaudreau said that 127 Jeeps are registered for this year's event, vehicles ranging in age from World War II vintage (1942) veterans to the latest 1997 models. The annual parade up Main Street in Bethel will begin at approximately 8:30 Saturday morning, Gaudreau said.

Golden arches on the horizon

• And that's no whopper

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Fast-food giant McDonald's has apparently decided it's time to set up shop in Bethel.

McDonald's is negotiating with developer Heinie Merrill for space in the Bethel Station development.

Describing McDonald's as a good corporate citizen, Merrill said Tuesday he was "excited and very positive we can pull a deal together."

A spokesperson at McDonald's regional headquarters in Massachusetts described the current discussions as "very preliminary," but said "we're definitely interested in being in Bethel."

The location for the hamburger outlet would be the square of ground being cleared behind Rhea Lu's Chinese Restaurant, Merrill said.

McDonald's Corporation is currently involved in what the Wall Street Journal describes as an "unprecedented nationwide expansion," as the company battles for market share in the increasingly competitive fast-food market.

This year alone, McDonald's plans to open between 800 and 1,000 new outlets, according to the WSJ.

And in part because of the proliferation of outlets, both their own and those of competitors, average individual store sales dropped 2.5 percent last year, but still stood at slightly over $1.5 million.

Three quarters of the McDonald's outlets are operated by franchisees. One of these, LeClerc Management Co. of Norway, operates 11 outlets in western Maine and nearby New Hampshire.

New McDonald's outlets are usually put out for potential franchisees to bid on, so it is not certain that LeClerc would operate a Bethel outlet.

But Bonny Carver, a spokesperson for LeClerc, said Monday that her company would probably bid on a Bethel franchise, assuming negotiations between McDonald's and Merrill are successful.

How high the arch?

If McDonald's does come to town, its signature golden arches will probably not be large enough to pose a threat to the Bethel village skyline.

The Bethel sign ordinance revisions approved by voters last year limit the height of any sign to 16 feet and its total area, in a 35 MPH zone, to 32 square feet (total area is determined by the size of the smallest rectangle that can encompass the outline of the sign).

The company spokesperson in Massachusetts declined to discuss the possible size of the arches, but she said it is McDonald's policy to comply with town sign regulations.

Merrill said he has made design and signage recommendations to McDonald's, "and now it's up to them."

Bank is only new Station building likely this year

• Needs final tenant before go-ahead

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Infrastructure work at Bethel Station, much of it underground and out of sight, is moving ahead, but there may be little progress visible above ground when the current construction season draws to a close.

Developer Heinie Merrill said he needs a signed lease with one additional tenant before starting construction of the proposed Norway Savings Bank building.

The bank building, to be located across from the Bottle & Bag, is slated to have 14,000 square feet of office and retail space.

Merrill said Tuesday that the bank had not yet determined exactly how much of the total space it would require.

Merrill is scheduled to present a new rendering of the building to the Bethel Planning Board tonight.

The building will be finished in brick, he said.

Hotel at least a year away

The hotel that was to have been the cornerstone of the project will not be built this season.

When plans for Bethel Station were first announced, in 1993, there was hope that a 130-room hotel could be built the following year.

But various delays in the early stages of the project held up the hotel, and eventually the initial investors withdrew, according to Les

Get a fire permit

BETHEL--Fire Chief Jim Young offers a spring reminder that anyone burning logs, stumps, roots, brush, slash, fields of dry grass, pasture, blueberry land or debris is required by law to obtain a burning permit from the local fire department. Guidelines for safe burning include: burn after 5 p.m.; have adequate help and equipment to control a fire; never leave a fire unattended (it's illegal). Permits are also required for incinerators, which should have solid sides, a cover, and be placed in the middle of a 10-foot diameter circle cleared to mineral soil.

Six candidates seeking offices

BETHEL--Six people (as of Tuesday afternoon) have filed papers showing their intent to run for offices in Bethel. Dr. Harry (Dutch) Dresser and Robert Chadbourn are seeking reelection to their selectmen's seats. John Brown and Dr. Richard DeCarolis are running for two seats on the SAD44 School Board. A month ago Brown said he would not seek reelection to the seat he currently holds, but decided last week to run rather than have the town go unrepresented. Robert Saunders and John Head are seeking the assessor's position.

Nomination papers, assessor available

ANDOVER--Nomination papers are now available for anyone interested in running for the selectmen's seat formerly held by Joe Madigan. Laura Hutchins is the only person so far to take out papers, according to selectman Dick Planter. In other town business, Planter said, the assessor will be at the Town Office on May 28 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Anyone with questions on property assessments is asked to come in at that time.

A.W.A.P. receives grant

AUBURN--The Abused Women's Advocacy Project has been awarded a $5,200 grant to expand a two-year-old pilot program for Oxford County students. Known as "Voices Changing Choices," the peer education program serves students in grades 5-12. It is designed to impact attitudes about dating and dating behavior, to help students explore alternatives to violence and learn how conflicts in their relationships can be handled nonviolently. The program is managed by A.W.A.P. staff member Marion Klickstein, who develops a protocol to handle disclosures of violence between school personnel and project staff, offering follow-up support and access to services for students as needed. Through the grant from the Maine Women's Fund, a part-time person will be hired to expand the program into additional schools. For information call 784-3995.

Justice department reviews merger

CARRABASSETT VALLEY--The U.S. Justice Department is looking into the $107-million sale of S-K-I Ltd. to LBO Holding Co. to examine any possible antitrust problems. It is a routine check, according to S-K-I's corporate counsel, Frank P. Urso. The Hart Scott Rodino Act requires the review of a merger or sale when the assets of the company exceed $100 million. Prior to the sale of its California resort, S-K-I's assets alone topped $136 million. Although the combined company, to be known as the American Skiing Co., will be the largest ski resort company in North America, Urso said there were 20 ski areas in Vermont alone and 150 in the Northeast for skiers to patronize. As a result, Urso said he did not foresee any antitrust problems with the sale, which is scheduled to close on June 12.

AMC plan comments sought

LAACONIA, N.H.--The U.S. Forest Service will schedule three public forums to hear comment on the Appalachian Mountain Club's master development plan, according to forest supervisor Donna Hepp. The sessions will be held in Gorham, N.H., Concord, N.H., and Watertown, Mass. The meeting in Gorham will take place on May 9 at the Town and Country Inn, and will include two sessions. An open house will be held from 3-6 p.m., while listening sessions will be from 7-10 p.m. Written comments will also be considered in determining whether the forest service will accept the plan as submitted or ask AMC to revise it. Once the MDP has been revised and/or formally accepted, the National Environmental Policy Act process will be undertaken. It will include environmental analysis and further opportunity for public comment. Copies of the plan will be available at the forums through the mail. Send written comments to: Forest Service AMC Permit Team, 719 Main St., Laconia, N.H. 03246.

Get the bug dope out

EVERYWHERE, Me.--Due to unusually heavy rain in April, this year's crop of mosquitoes is expected to be larger than usual, while black flies are expected to be biting in average numbers. More stagnant water means more opportunity for mosquito larvae to mature. The black fly population, on the other hand, has little to do with how much rain has fallen. They breed in fast-moving streams, and their numbers rarely change much from year to year, according to state entomologist Dick Dearborn.

Lumber truck closes Boston bridge

BOSTON--A Quebec lumber truck driver was arrested Thursday after his truck slammed into a girder supporting Interstate 93 over the Charles River, according to a report in the Boston Globe. Two-by-fours 12 feet long slammed into the girder, causing it to buckle and closing down the highway for a time. Serge Brousseau, 32, was charged with driving drunk and driving to endanger. His blood alcohol level was .20, more than double the threshold for drunk driving. More than 700 pieces of lumber were spilled into the water below and onto the road. Repair work was expected to cause traffic delays this week.

Safe partying tips

WASHINGTON, D.C.--The Government Employees Insurance Co. offers the following tips for safe summer parties: have plenty of non-alcoholic drinks available; offer guests food frequently to balance their drinking -- serve food in waves to encourage return trips to the table; make sure your menu includes plenty of protein-oriented items and rich, starchy foods (cheese, pizza, seafood) to slow the absorption of alcohol into the bloodstream; avoid salty or sweet foods that make people thirsty; close the bar at least an hour before the party ends; arrange for rides home for impaired guests.

Exercise good for the brain, too

NEW YORK--Everyone knows that exercise is good for the body. Now there's evidence that it's good for the brain. Several researchers have found that older people who remain physically active suffer little or no loss in memory and other brain functions, compared to those who are relatively inactive. Studies with mice provide a possible explanation for this exercise-related benefit. Mice who were exercised regularly on a treadmill had higher levels of a molecule called brain-derived neurotrophic factor (BDNF). This nerve growth factor helps nerve cells stay healthy. Closer study of the mice showed that the increase in BDNF occurred not only in the parts of the brain that govern physical activity but also in brain centers for learning, memory and abstract thinking. There is also a significant amount of evidence that an active mental and social life is also good for the aging brain.

sales, largely through the mountain's promotion of SCX parabolic skis.

Beaulieu said the ski train had a successful season, but the operation would be evaluated for ways to get rail-riding skiers to and from the slopes more efficiently.

Asked about any development for this summer, Beaulieu said, "Nothing major is planned. We're waiting until the merger (with S-K-I Limited) is finalized. We're waiting to see who gets what among the resorts. But I'm sure some type of capital improvement will be done."

The merger is scheduled to be finalized in June. A 300-room hotel for the Jordan Bowl area, recently approved by the Newry Planning Board, is on hold, Beaulieu said.

Beaulieu was also asked about rumors of employee layoffs, beyond the usual seasonal ones, connected with the merger. He said there were no more layoffs, whether seasonal or full-time, than usual. When the capital improvement projects are more clearly defined, he said, some of the people laid off will be put back to work.

Good early, slower late

As for other businesses affected by skier traffic, Chamber of Commerce executive director Robin Zinchuk said the winter was "overall fairly strong, considering the up-and-down weather."

At her own Chapman Inn, "December and January were excellent. February and March were flat because of the weather. It was tough then trying to get people interested in skiing. We had early checkouts (February) vacation week."

The February school vacation week was marred by several rainy days.

It was a similar story at the Bethel Inn. "It was a very strong beginning. The early snow helped. We did better than expected in January and February, but slower than expected in late March and April -- because of the weather," manager Allen Connors said.

While the occupancy rate for February and early March was actually the same as last year, profits were better because the Inn increased its rates, he said.

But the story was different for Bob Hand of the Glen Mountain House Bed and Breakfast in Bryant Pond.

"The winter was slow. With the expansion at Sunday River, people are staying there instead," he said.

Hand said his business has dropped off steadily over the past few years, although "we still have regulars, mostly from Massachusetts and Rhode Island."

"More people around"

The food business apparently benefited from an increased number of skiers.

"We had a good winter. Much better than last. There were more people around, and we gained some of the Red Top's business," said Roberta Taylor of the Bottle & Bag in Bethel.

The Red Top truck stop, a regular gathering place for locals on Route 2, closed last summer.

It was also a "very good" winter at Bethel's Java House coffee shop, according to manager Debbie Mills. "Spring has been good, too. We get support from both the locals and skiers."

Getting favorable mention in a Ski Magazine article titled "Ski Town: Bethel, Maine" didn't hurt, either, she said.

The two Telstar Video Stores saw more skier business, too. "It was way up compared to the year before," said Karen Wight. "It was just wonderful."

Keenan Auction Co. on Main Street in Bethel had a season "about the same -- maybe a little better -- than last year," said manager Mary Ellen Durrell. "There was a bigger traffic flow, and a lot of repeat business."

Despite that fact, Keenan's will close for the spring and part of the summer, Durrell said. She declined to discuss the reasons or the future of the business, saying the decisions were made at a higher management level.

Phone calls to Keenan's headquarters were not returned.

In the real estate business, Joanne Mercier of Maine Street Realty in Bethel said 1996 business has been much better so far than 1995.

Clients have mostly included first-home buyers and new people moving to the area.

Second homes make up less of the business.

"We have a couple in process now," Mercier said.

Evidence goes up in Bogart roach

At 10 p.m. on May 1 police observed a pickup truck exit P.H. Chadbourn mill, stop near Route 26, and shut off its lights. A lighter was then ignited in the vehicle. The officer approached the truck and identified the driver as a mill employee. The officer detected a strong odor of fresh, burning marijuana. The driver said there was no more marijuana in the truck -- all he had was a roach from which he had taken one "hit," and it was gone. A search of the vehicle for more contraband turned up nothing. Having no evidence, no further action was taken. The driver was released with a warning.

Also on May 1

At 9:30 p.m. a Newry resident reported that while he was traveling east on Route 2 near the Angry Dog Pub, a male subject intentionally jumped in front of his car. Police checked the area with negative results.

At 11:00 p.m. James E. Noyes, 25, of Gilead was arrested for OUI and possession of drug paraphernalia. The incident stemmed from a traffic stop for no plate light and suspicious activity.

Thursday, May 2

At 2:38 a.m. Brian J. Shea, 24, of Niantic, Conn., was stopped for having no plate light. A subsequent license check revealed his Connecticut operator's license had expired on April 2. He was summoned and released. The vehicle was driven away by a licensed occupant.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log, but does not include all reports of police activity. Ordinance also unaware of the ordinance. The town approved a Unified Development Ordinance in 1992 designed to consolidate and clarify town development policy. The 1992 ordinance does address floodplains.

But Putnam said in his opinion the newer ordinance does not supersede the older one, which he characterized as more restrictive. The older document would therefore take priority, he said.

Sandstrom said voters might have to rescind the 1987 ordinance if the relationship between the two was not clear.

Putnam said he also learned from a Federal Emergency Management Agency representative that the old ordinance would need updating.

He also found an agreement between the town and FEMA regarding town flood insurance, which hinged on the 1987 ordinance.

Aloisio said he would discuss the situation with the selectmen and get back to the board.

As it happened, Aloisio presented a Sunday River application to the board at the same meeting to repair flood damage at the snowmaking pond. The board voted to table the item until the ordinance question can be resolved.

Regarding the lawyer looking into Sunday River projects, Sunday River spokesman Ken Beaulieu said Monday such a check is a routine part of refinancing -- in this case Sunday River's merger with S-K-I Limited.

Conflict of interest?

Two board members have expressed their concern at recent meetings about the makeup of the seven-member board.

Four of the members -- Jim Trotter, Jim Largess, Art Marshall and chairman Joe Aloisio -- are employees of Sunday River Ski Resort.

A fifth member, Norman Davis, is the spouse of an employee. All but Aloisio are newly appointed.

Vice chairman Don Sandstrom told selectmen last week that balance is not good for either the ski resort or the town.

He said if a member without economic ties to Sunday River was absent from a meeting at which a Sunday River issue was considered, votes could be taken to benefit the company rather than the town.

Sandstrom said he had contacted the Maine Municipal Association about the board makeup, and was told that even if a conflict of interest cannot be avoided, the town must still carry out its business.

But he was also concerned that if the members have to abstain on some votes, the board may not be able to move forward.

Member Joanne Mercier agreed the number of employees on the board could be considered a conflict of interest.

Mercier said if the skiway came to the board with a high-profile project, the public would take note of it and it would not look good for either the town or the company.

At last week's selectmen's meeting, Wendy Hanscom told Sandstrom the selectmen had spent much time trying to find people who would serve on the board and were not connected with the resort. But, she said, "no one was interested."

Davis, who described himself as a reluctant volunteer, said he was "a little annoyed" that he was greeted on joining the board with a discussion of conflict of interest.

He said he was also concerned about the possibility of putting time into the board, only to be asked to resign later.

Largess said he had himself expressed a concern over the makeup of the board when he requested appointment. He said he wanted to serve the town, but it could take other forms.

Sandstrom requested, at last week's Planning Board meeting, that copies of MMA board ethics guidelines be obtained for the members.

(The reporter is married to Planning Board chairman Joe Aloisio.)

Bank

Otten, owner of Sunday River Ski Resort and one of the three Bethel Station partners.

"We're still interested," Otten said, "but the first financial arrangements lapsed and now we have to get restarted."

Otten has also proposed construction of four other, 300-room hotel/conference centers elsewhere: at Sunday River and at three of the ski areas acquired by his holding company, LBO Holdings.

But he said the capital requirements of the ski-area projects are unrelated to plans for Bethel Station, and not the reason hotel construction here has been put off.

Delays in establishing train service between Portland and Boston have also taken some steam out of the hotel project, Otten said.

Part of the rationale for the hotel was to service skiers taking the train from metropolitan markets along the East Coast, he said, but with the necessary rail links still unforged, there has been less urgency to move ahead with the hotel.

"When our train can meet their trains, then we'll be at the point where we need the hotel," Otten said.

FROM THE

Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce

The Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce held its 27th Annual Awards Dinner on Friday, May 3, at the Bethel Inn Conference Center, with nearly 140 attending.

Chamber member and former president Don Bennett was the emcee for the evening. President of the Board Lois Ruff and Executive Director Robin Zinchuk welcomed the audience and reviewed the accomplishments of the chamber during the past year. Lois recognized the Board members and volunteers that have made the chamber's projects so successful.

Ranald and Sarah Stevens of Bethel were the recipients of the Hugh Chisholm Award, presented by the Oxford County United Way and the Western Area Agency on Aging. They were recognized for their tireless service to the community for more than 50 years.

Nan Timberlake was presented with the Senior Citizen Award. Chamber board member Cathy Newell cited Nan's work with the West Paris Congregational Church, Androscoggin Home Health, the schools, Local Access Cable Station Channel 4, the Bethel Bicentennial Committee and many other organizations that she has been involved with during her years in Bethel. In her speech, Nan indicated that it was her desire to continue to work for and with "family oriented activities" which have kept her interested in volunteering for so many causes.

Receiving the prestigious Henry H. Hastings Citizenship Award was Nancy Grover of Mason Township. Telstar Guidance Director Beth LaVallee, in presenting the award, talked of Nancy's dedication to the youth of the area through her volunteerism. The Odyssey of the Mind program is one that Nancy has nurtured and directed for the past eight years. Her work with the school drama program, as a classroom volunteer, as a volunteer in Telstar's guidance office, with the Children's Dance Theater of Bethel, as a Sunday School teacher and in several other community groups makes Nancy a wonderful choice for this award.

The surprise of the evening was the presentation of the Volunteer of the Year Award to long standing Chamber board member Cathy Newell. President Lois Ruff cited Cathy's untiring energy in her pursuit of new and innovative educational programs for individuals and businesses in the Bethel region. Cathy has served on the Chamber board for nearly ten years and has been on countless committees and worked on nearly every chamber event in the last ten years.

Maure Hummer Joe Perham left the audience's sides aching from laughing so hard! After Joe Perham, the final four awards were presented.

Christine Blake received the Retail and Service Employee award for her excellent work at Preb's Pharmacy for the last 12 years. Ann Patten, manager at Preb's presented her with a plaque.

Burt Mills, V.P. of Sunday River Ski Resort presented Danny Wheeler with the Ski Industry Employee of the Year award. Danny was cited for his hard work and growing expertise in the lift maintenance and snowmaking areas.

Dillon Gillies was given the Hospitality Employee of the Year award for his work as the manager of the Snow Cap Inn. He was nominated and presented the award by Art Marshall. Art told stories of guests who had written to Sunday River management extolling the wonderful treatment they had received during their stay at the Snow Cap Inn, due to the hospitality attitude that Dillon has.

The final award of the evening was presented by Les Otten, president of Sunday River Ski Resort. The Business of the Year award was presented to the Bethel Savings Bank. Despite their phenomenal growth in the last 25 years, the Bethel Savings Bank has continued to support the Bethel community. Jim Delamater and Phil Jackson accepted the award on behalf of the trustees and employees of the bank who have believed in the bank, taken risks and served the public during the bank's history.

The evening was an amazing success for all who attended. The chamber wishes to congratulate all the award recipients and thank the Bethel Inn for a great meal, Pooh Corner Farm & Greenhouses and the Unicorn Flower Shop and Garden Center for the beautiful decorations!

What you told us: Citizen readership survey results

From the publisher:

On behalf of all of us at The Citizen, I want to thank the hundreds of readers who took the time to complete our readership survey last year. We received 441 completed survey forms, which constitutes an outstanding return rate (To put the rate in perspective, The Maine Times, which has four times our circulation, recently conducted a readership survey and expressed delight at receiving 420 returns. The MT termed that response "overwhelming.")

In itself, our survey's return rate tells us a great deal about the place The Citizen has in our readers' lives.

And you seem generally pleased with how we're doing our job. The graphs on this page show your response to the multiple-choice questions. As you can see (Graph 1) the overwhelming number of respondents are local people, and (Graph 2) more than nine out of ten feel The Citizen's articles present an accurate and balanced view of the issues they address.

We work hard at that, and we are genuinely gratified by your response.

As graphs 3, 4 and 5 show, three-quarters of you feel we present all sides of an issue, deal fairly with local officials, and that our articles are of an appropriate length.

Graph 6 shows that the most read parts of the newspaper are front-page stories and letters to the editor; and the least read parts are sports, the TV section and the crossword.

Graph 7 shows that The Citizen is your main source of local news, followed by conversation with friends and the Sun-Journal/Sunday.

The survey also asked a number of open-ended questions. There were far too many responses to list here, but we can certainly hit the high points.

We asked what you felt we devoted too much space to. Ads (50 respondents) led the list, followed by Les Otten and Sunday River (26), the TV section (21) and town correspondents (20), schools (7) negative reporting (5).

We also asked you what we should devote more space to. You suggested local news/human-interest stories/events (56), school events (16), town correspondents (5), town meeting news (4) and development and economic news (4). There were more than 100 other answers, each from one or two readers. They are impossible to summarize, but the word "local" turns up frequently.

We also asked what stories we may have missed or not covered in enough detail. There were no startling revelations here, but four topics did get three mentions each: Bethel Station, thefts and drug busts at Sunday River, SAD44 students and accomplishments, and stories of young people doing good and achieving goals in their lives.

The survey concluded with a comment box, where respondents could tell us anything they liked -- and they did.

There were a number of complaints about the timeliness of mail delivery; some about town correspondents focusing on themselves and not town news, and about the lack of a Bethel correspondent; others about a negative attitude toward SAD44; a few about submissions that did not get into the newspaper or were edited in ways the contributor disagreed with; and there were two irate references to the infamous "Stick em up, Vlad" Halloween photo.

But there were also many encouragements to "Keep up the good work," and a number of readers used the comment box to tell us how much they look forward to getting the newspaper each week.

We know that the people who make up our readership are hardly a homogenized group. There are many smaller, sometimes quite diverse, interest groups within the larger community of our readers-- groups made up of individual readers who open the newspaper looking for very different things.

And know we will never be able to make everyone happy, but your response to the readership survey has given us even more reason to renew our commitment to the basics: getting as much local news -- in all its guises -- into your newspaper as possible.

I'd like to conclude by sharing with you the comments from one survey card (below). They deal with one of the most liked or disliked components of a community newspaper: town correspondents. We receive regular complaints about devoting space to such news, but the town columns are read regularly (Graph 6) by well over half our readers.

This particular survey card was filled out by three readers. They use the term "local news" but are clearly referring to our town columns. We'll indicate the three different writers here by italic, bold and normal type.

Elsewhere on the page is a representative sampling of other reader comments.

--EMS

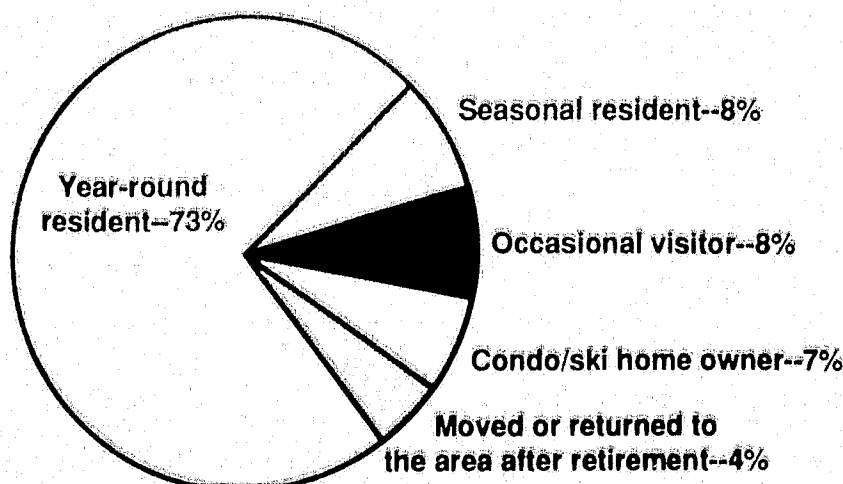

"The local news section should be scaled back or just cut out entirely."

"Local news is fine, but news is news and not just idle chatters often in words not easily understood. If the column is pure entertainment, then OK -- but news?"

"I like the local columns for the fun of it."

"See? Three points of view on one subject. My friend, you cannot win! Happy publishing!"

Graph 1
Please describe yourself:

"The mailing or delivery of your paper is terrible. My friend in Virginia also tells me he has the same problem."

"Wish I could get the paper in stores outside of the Bethel region."

"Reading the Citizen brings me home for 30 minutes every week."

"Stay 'small town' in your coverage and you'll keep me happy."

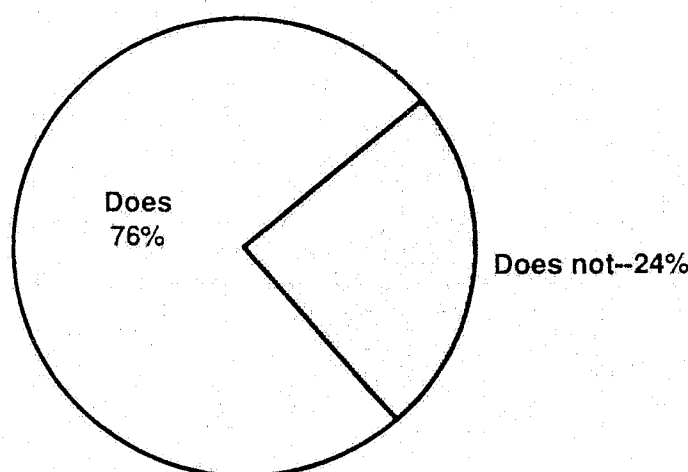

"Would like to see a column for Bethel people -- this has been a weakness for years. Other towns (some) do a good job for real local news. A few columns are lengthy and rambling -- hard to follow or wade through."

"News of Locke Mills seems nonexistent. Couldn't you report on town selectmen, planning board, zoning board, etc.?"

"I do not like the local police log. Most of it is unnecessary, pure trash. I feel Bethel is degraded with some of its reports."

"I really enjoy the town correspondents and the police log."

I believe The Bethel Citizen (does/does not) present all sides of local issues:

"Mr. D. should stay more in the background with his negative, biased opinions. The paper does not need his input if it is going to be so poorly stated."

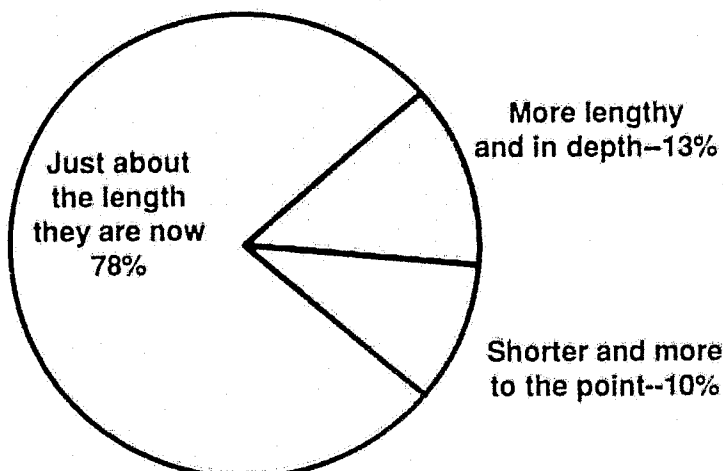

"I wish Mike would be even more controversial!"

"Editor appears arrogant, smug, narrow-minded and chauvinistic; is too easily swayed by big business to be objective."

"We appreciate the paper very much. For us it is 'the paper to read' for the Bethel area. Enjoy particularly the accurate and interesting pieces by Alison Aloisio. Also Mike Daniels' editorials and his humorous pieces, as well as his other pieces."

"Your news coverage appears to be appropriate, accurate and to the point. We look forward to our issue each week."

Graph 5
Length -- Stories should be:

"Would like to see more coverage of economic trends in area plus history of real estate transfers. Otherwise a great paper."

"Reporters do adequate job and write well, however seem to stick to 'safe' reporting."

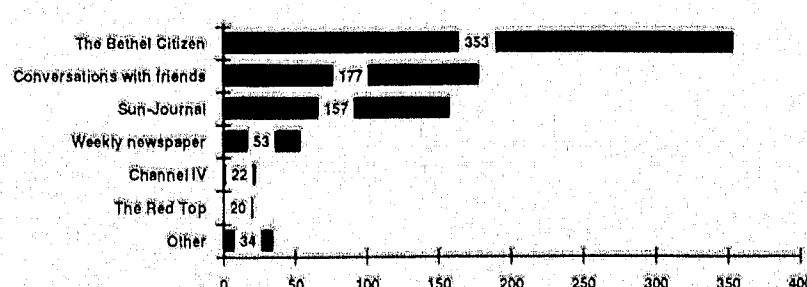

"I believe that the paper should print all articles that are sent in regardless of the sports editor's sport of choice."

"Front page photos are usually boring or taken from a very odd angle."

"I enjoy the pictures that are now included with the town correspondence."

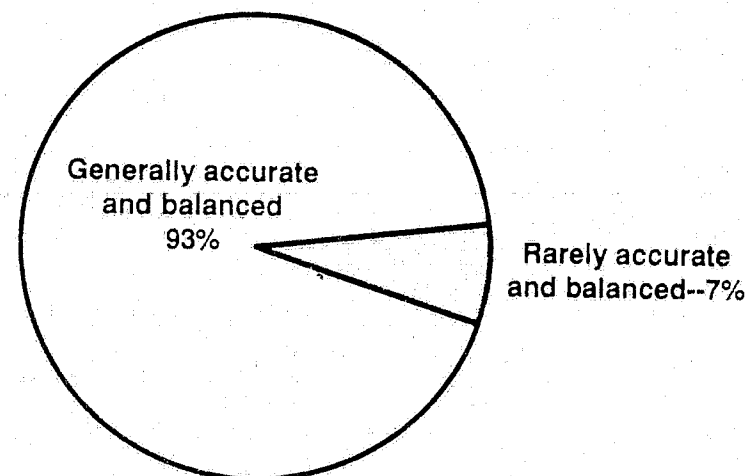

"I do not think the pictures of town writers are necessary in paper every week."

Graph 7
I get most of my local news from:

Graph 2

Most of what I read in The Bethel Citizen is:

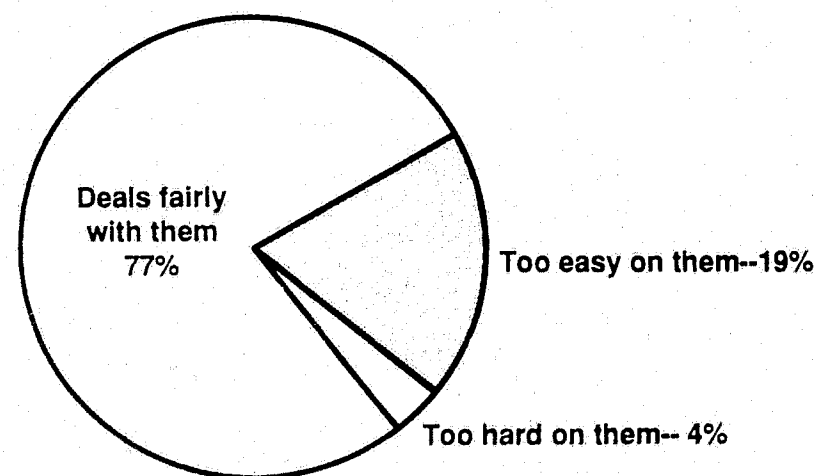

"The Citizen is usually very negative toward SAD44. They offer no help, but harm ... More often than not it's called the 'Bethel Belly Ache.'"

"You devoted two full pages to the local schools. These children do not buy your newspaper -- maybe their parents or grandparents do -- but they already know what you are printing."

"Cheers to you for the good school and sports coverage."

"I think you should dig into school activities a bit more. Maybe you could wake up the school administration if you worked on the lack of music, art and drama in the school system."

Graph 4
When The Bethel Citizen reports on local officials it is:

"Anything but Les Otten and Leon Favreau."

"I think Les Otten and his partners are the best thing that ever happened to Bethel! I'd sure like to see more in your paper on what's going on regarding their project there."

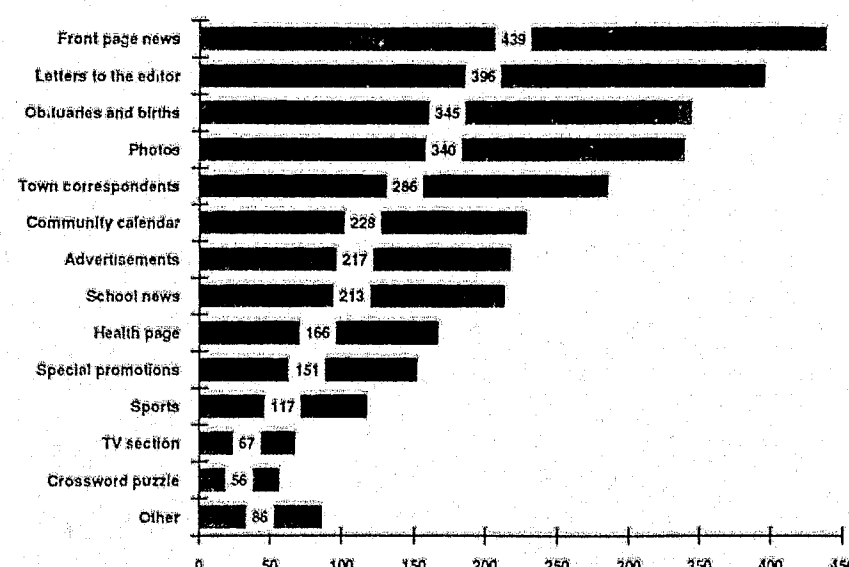

"America has become a nation of recreation and you devote too much time and space to the recreationalists and their fun and games."

"You do an excellent job especially covering Les Otten in a fair and balanced manner."

"Should rename it the Sunday River Times."

Graph 6

The parts of The Bethel Citizen that I read regularly:

"Keep up the good work. Other newspapers should aspire to your quality of coverage."

"The paper has gone downhill badly."

"Basically I enjoy reading the Citizen -- it has shown a vast improvement in recent years -- keep up the good work."

"The attraction of the Bethel Citizen is -- it is still a 'hometown' newspaper and don't lose sight of that. People want local news and local interest stories -- local ads."

North Newry

by Gil Seely
Well, the big "auction of the century" is over and Camelot sure had collected a lot. I am writing about the Kennedy Onassis auction of course. Can you imagine anyone accumulating all that stuff, and then finding out that you can't take it with you when you leave this earth? $4.5 million! It moves me to quote the philosopher, King David's son Solomon, "We leave this world just as we enter it, with nothing, in spite of all our work. There is nothing we can take with us. It's like chasing the wind."

Michelle and Paul Josephson, and their new baby boy, Nikolaus, about two months old, came to North Newry on Saturday, April 27, to spend the day with great-grandparents Reginald and Karlene Bachelder.

Rodney Hanscom led the call to worship on Sunday, April 28 at the Newry Community Church, with daughter Nancy at the organ. The message of the day was, "Trials and Tribulations," from Isaiah 53:4-5, St. Peter 2:19-20, Matthew 5:3 to 11. "Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake." A special was read by Gil Seely: "Jesus, a real man not a myth."

Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Gil Seely, Doris Parent and Louise Tetley, members of the "Newry Bowling Gang" were at the Oxford Lanes in Rumford one day last week. On the overall scores, Betsy and Karlene were neck to neck on the singles and triples. But Betsy finally won both by only one pin. Of the "righties," Doris was high on both the singles and triples. She had four spares. Betsy had two spares and Karlene and Louise one spare each.

One day on the way home, on Route 26, we saw a young turkey. We also saw a young bear in my yard. The same day, I saw a young moose across the road in Bennett's field. And the next day another one in the field, the same one maybe?

That's what I like about living in Maine, you never know what you're going to see.

Remember the Mother/Daughter potluck supper at the Grange Hall on Monday, May 13 at 6 p.m. See you there.

Happy birthday to Rena Powers on May 12, Mother's Day. And a happy birthday to all the mothers everywhere. "Here's a warm and friendly wish for a day that's a perfect blend of birthday joy and gladness, from the start to the very end!"

South Woodstock

by Andrea Wing
My sister Evelyn and husband James Dunn stopped by for a while yesterday. They live in Canpton, N.H. and were in this area for a memorial service for one of Jim's relatives.

Beverly Stevens gave me a call this week to get caught up on the news and said that Vince, her husband, had been out of work for a couple of weeks with pneumonia. There's a lot of sickness around, as usual, in the spring. Lolalee Dillingham has also been laid up with pneumonia for a while. I hope they are all feeling better at this time.

Joyce and Ellsworth Hathaway are home after touring the country in their mobile home. I haven't talked with them about it yet, but hope they had as good a time as they have in the past.

When I was at the hospital having blood tests (this week, I saw Gertrude Andrews. I asked how Stan was doing and she said he seemed to be pretty well at this time).

Rick Wing and Sally Smith paid us a visit last Sunday. Sally had been to Washington, D.C. and made a tracing from the Vietnam Memorial of my brother's name, Leon L. Poland Jr. I thought this was nice of her to think of it while she was there.

I am traveling to Lewiston three times a week for PUVA treatments for my psoriasis. Hope it helps. I stopped for a while, as it seemed to snow every day, and it is quite a way to travel on slippery roads.

I missed Randi Mack for perfect attendance at Woodstock Elementary School last week. Sorry Randi.

Those on the honor roll from this area at Telstar High School are: High Honors: Jeffrey Campbell and Emily Phillips. Honors: Becky Chandler, Cora Gallagher, Jeremy Curley, Staci Littlehale, Neil Thurlow and Samuel Sayer. Good work everyone.

Happy birthday to all those celebrating in May: Jerry Verrill, Marguerite Verrill, Kimberly Hadley, Maurice Morgan, Elaine Wilday, Gina Poland, Stacy Mason, Pam Pason, Gloria Flemming, Jason Cannuli, Betty Estabrook, Debbie Poland, Evelyn Dunn, Chea Davis, Tommy Poland, Emery Ryerson, Barbara Cash, Earl Hart, Donna Kushiba, Lolalee Dillingham and Craig Moore. Very special birthday wishes to my daughter Kellie Hart and granddaughter Sarah Hart and also Jeff Littlehale.

An idea was born in the Methodist Sunday School in Grafton, W. Va. in 1876. The speaker, Mrs. Anna Reeves Jarvis, was a mother of 11 children. She so inspired her 12 year old, that she worked many years to promote this idea.

Her motto, "To honor the best mother who ever lived -- your mother." Her chosen flower, the carnation. Climaxed on May 8, 1914, when President Wilson designated the second Sunday of May as annual Mother's Day.

"God took the pureness of the lily, the softness of the clouds above, the strength of the mighty oak tree and he formed mother's love. He took calmness from the gentle brook and patience for a start. He added faith and gratitude and made a mother's heart." --Lois A. Williams--

My sister Lucy and her daughter Nancy recently called on me.

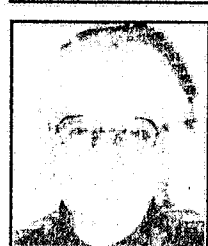

Carl and Lettie Brooks came to see me one afternoon this week. They didn't find me, but left two cookies in a plastic bag, under a pail on my steps. I found the plastic bag torn into pieces, and no cookies. I presume the squirrels had a lunch. I didn't.

My other callers were Urban Goodwin, Evelyn Heikkinen, Eleanor Inman and Rena Curtis.

Walter Curtis of Farmington came to visit his mother Rena on Tuesday.

Nestor Tamminen had hip surgery on May 2 and would be pleased to have cards. He is in Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway.

Kane Olson, son of Chris and Cindy, played two ball games on April 27. They won one and lost one. They play again on May 3 to see who goes ahead in the tournament.

Dana Jackson had knee replacement surgery on April 25. He developed an infection and won't be home for a few more days.

Arlene Harrington had a birthday on May 3.

Rudi Honkala visited some cousins in Beverly, Mass., on April 26 and 27.

Sally Bennock is visiting friends in the neighborhood.

Rodney Howe is doing well. He takes five-minute walks around the yard, several times a day.

Maybe spring is here. Today, May Day, was nice.

Several cottage owners were at their summer places over the weekend. Some even tried out their skills at water skiing, wearing wet suits.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Halle of Lisbon Falls visited the Bill Bancrofts on Saturday. He helped with raking and other chores.

Visitors here on Saturday were Brandon Salway from Old Orchard Beach; Bernie and Kass Gatchell and Kaity of Portland, Sylvia Swan and children from Auburn; Ethel and Craig Turner; Dave and Jon Bean from Otisfield, Dottie and Herbie Adams of Hanover and Norma and David. Cake and ice cream and a potluck dinner were enjoyed to help me celebrate another anniversary. Gifts were much appreciated. I received phone calls from Oregon, Idaho, Massachusetts, Vermont and locals.

More little birds are returning, al-that is. How about taking your mother for a country ride to Upton this Mother's Day. No black flies yet.

Screw Auger Falls, in Grafton Notch, was roaring this week with all the rain and run-off. Matthew enjoyed throwing stones in the water and learning about "mist" from the falls. Thank you, Pat Lewit, for your interest in local stories. We look forward to hearing yours soon.

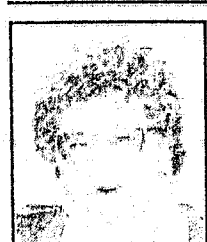

Just a reminder to Upton Ladies about the Mother/Daughter potluck supper on Monday, May 13 at 6 p.m. at the Newry Grange Hall.

Here's a little trivia: Charlie and Ann Lavallee were the first people to sign the Upton Trading Post Guest Book back in December of 1991.

Marie Aron shared some exciting news. Public Broadcasting Station (PBS) visited the kindergarten class at Crescent Park School where her daughter Lisa is a student. The educational series aired on Tuesday, May 7 at 8 p.m. Sorry I didn't get this news earlier so we all could have watched it.

Hi readers, I've finished morning coffee, read the paper, done the word scramble and now it's time to get to work.

Crystal Dunn was around town today, getting pledges for "Swing for Swings." This is a jump rope program (they have to jump for three hours) and the money pledged and collected goes toward new playground equipment at the new Suncook School.

I picked a bouquet of May flowers recently from the backyard out near Delilah Millet remains at the hospital in Bangor, where she underwent surgery following a heart attack.

Faith Barker is at home after being overseas with a group of students. She left with the French Club from Fryeburg Academy and was gone from April 15 until April 24. This was a chaperoned and guided tour for the students. They went to Paris, France, Florence, Rome, the Leaning Tower of Pisa and the Sistine Chapel. There were about 53 people on this tour and it was reported that they all had a good trip, but were glad to get home. Faith has also been busy with her music, going to Caribou, where they came in third. The also played with the Berkeley Jazz Band Festival in Boston. She was in the Portland Wind Ensemble Concert on April 8. Please excuse any errors in this report. Faith, I don't do shorthand anymore. What a wonderful experience for all who were able to go on these trips. They learned a lot, had fun and will never forget it.

A Tupperware party was held on Wednesday evening at the North Waterford Church vestry room about 14 people there. Janice Enman of North Waterford was the demonstrator. She had a lot of new items, as well as the old favorites to choose from. Janice Wilcox won the door prize, and we all had a pick from a basket to take home.

The Stoneham Republican Committee is sponsoring a yard and bake sale on Saturday, May 11, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. This will be held either at the home of Eleanor Nelson or at the Stoneham Church vestry. We never know what the weather will be. The signs will be out, so watch for them, and come on in.

Helen Havista of Florida is visiting her brother and wife, Walter and Carolyn Heino for a few days.

Happy Mother's Day to all you ladies out there.

Paul Taylor from New Hampshire was a guest at the home of his aunt, Gladys Kilgore, recently.

Along with spring comes the hives and ticks, and I've already seen them. We have to take the bad with the good, don't we.

The next Oxford County Republican supper and meeting will be held at the Norway Congregational Church. The Hannah Hamlin Republican Women's Club will provide the supper. The speaker will be State Republican Chairman Kevin Keogh. This is across the street from the Jay E. Rowe School. The meeting will be on May 14, with social hour at 6 p.m. and supper at 7 p.m. All Republicans are welcome.

jumping events.

"We're not bad in the jumps. I think we'll get better as the year goes on," said Applin.

Rebel jumpers must practice on a dirt runway at Telstar, so it's hard for them to gauge how they'll do on the real thing.

But junior triple-jumper Jessie Wight, for one, did well in a meet last week -- almost well enough (if not for a slight foot foul) to win the event.

Applin thinks Wight may be able to qualify for June's regional competition, which requires a 30-foot jump. She has done over 28 to date.

Teammate and javelin-thrower Dawn Waisanen qualified for the regionals at the same meet, with a toss of 88 feet.

Beyond those two, Applin said, he has to characterize everyone else as a long shot to make the regionals -- simply because he hasn't seen enough performances under real conditions to judge otherwise.

The running events are the weaker ones for the Rebel girls.

"We don't have the sprinters we had last year -- and Amy was our distance runner," Applin said.

"Amy" was Amy Howe, a 1995 graduate who qualified for the regionals.

A new event for Maine high school girls this year is the pole vault. Because it's new, what would otherwise seem like a modest vault will get a girl to the regionals.

"Six feet is the standard. A girl who can jump seven would clean house," said Applin.

He said the pole vault is more difficult for girls than boys, because it requires upper body strength, and because girls' body weight is distributed differently.

The team's early attempts at vaulting provided good entertainment for anyone watching, Applin said. But with perseverance -- and maybe a sense of humor -- the Rebel girls will likely make it over the top.

Boys

While the girls lost their long-distance star, the boys are looking to fill the gap left by the graduation of Todd Wing, a talented jumper who set a school high jump record.

"We have better overall strength, but we don't have a stopper like Todd," said coach Russ Tomrose.

The team includes senior co-captains Ian Richardson (javelin, high hurdles, relays) and Justin Hutchins (relays, 400/800 meters), Adam Luxton (weights), Matt Laughton (discus), Kevin Marshall (weights) and Nathan Moore (triple jump); juniors Jason Billings (1,600/3,200 meters, high jump), Tim Adams (100/200 meters, relays), Justin Gilbert (weights), Fred Emerson (400/800 meters, hurdles, relays) and Dan Emerson (high/long jumps, relays); sophomores Dana Howe (1,600/3,200 meters), Tim Nickerson and Jerry Greenwell (hurdles); and freshmen Lee Bouchard (100/200 meters) and Thomas Roshito (hurdles).

The Rebels are strong in the dashes, with Adams and Bouchard in the 100, 200 and 400 meters, and Fred Emerson and Hutchins in the 400 and 800.

"Tim should qualify for the regionals in the 100 and 200 meters, and Lee Bouchard is right on his heels," said Tomrose.

Emerson and Hutchins, meanwhile, are competitive in their events, and usually reliable to place, said Tomrose.

In the other track events, the Rebels can generally be described as progressing, promising or just learning.

Although Tomrose characterized hurdling as a weaker event, Fred Emerson won the 110-meter hurdles on Thursday and placed in two other meets.

In the javelin, Ian Richardson has won two first places. "He's worked hard and it's paying off," said Tomrose.

Gilbert is solid in the shot put and discus, while Luxton shows promise in those two events as well. Laughton should be good in the discus, Tomrose said.

"I think we'll end up with a handful qualifying for the regionals," he said. "We're competitive against the smaller schools and I think we'll win a couple of meets. They have a good attitude."
